The screenshot shows the 'Share Project' form. It includes a heading 'Share Project' with an icon of two people. Below the heading is a paragraph explaining that users may be asked to share their project with a teacher/instructor. The form has several fields: 'Assignment Drop Box' (containing 'Thompson1 [Mr. Thompson]'), 'Your Name' (containing 'Bob Marley'), and a checkbox for 'Share my Google Docs paper' which is unchecked. There is also a note: 'Note: You may be prompted to log in to your Google'. At the bottom, there are two buttons: 'Share Project' and 'Back to Project'. A blue arrow points from the text 'Click "Share Project"' to the 'Share Project' button. Another blue arrow points from the text 'No Check' to the unchecked checkbox. A third blue arrow points from the text 'Select your hour with my name.' to the 'Your Name' field.

Select your hour with my name.

The next two pages show how the details supporting each main idea as listed on the "Day 2" handout become note cards in Noodle Tools.

Birthday Research – Day Two

Is My Research Strong Enough? and Have I Researched Enough?

Thesis: On March 5, 1836, Samuel Colt, changing America, patented the first production revolver.

*Thesis: It should make a claim or have an opinion – SOMETHING TO PROVE

Summarize 3-5 possible concrete details supporting each main idea for the paper.
-Do these support the main idea, and are they unique and interesting?

A, B, and C are minimum—more may be needed in the event that A, B, or C do not adequately or fully support the main idea to prove the thesis is true. Will they intrigue, interest, and excite the reader? Need Quality Details! (More than just dates and numbers!)

“I cannot find anything!” Then REsearch and REsearch – It’s called REsearch for a reason.

Main Idea #1 – Leading up to Colt's patent of the revolver

- A.
- B.
- C.
- D.
- E.

For each concrete detail, identify the source consulted. Note it in some way on this paper so that it can be found in Noodle Tools.

Main Idea #2 – During the time Colt's patent of the revolver

- A.
- B.
- C.
- D.
- E.

For each concrete detail, identify the source consulted. Note it in some way on this paper so that it can be found in Noodle Tools.

Main Idea #3 – Impacts following Colt's patent of the revolver

- A. revolver benefits the West - Washington believes it will benefit the war against Mexico - orders 1000
- B. produced and sold 400,000 before his death in 1862
- C. helped pioneers to settle the West in latter half of 1900s
- D. reduced the time to fire in succession from once every
 - ☛ 20 seconds to every second or so - what used to
 - take 90 seconds to fire six shots now takes less than 10

For each concrete detail, identify the source consulted. Note it in some way on this paper so that it can be found in Noodle Tools.
